

The Conference Programme

Keynote speakers

Dr. Susan Blackmore

Freelance writer, lecturer and broadcaster, and a Visiting Lecturer at the University of the West of England, Bristol.

Professor Paul Harris

Developmental psychologist and Victor S. Thomas Professor of Education at Harvard University.

Professor Mark Griffiths

Director of the International Gaming Research Unit at Nottingham Trent University.

Dr. Tom Stafford

Cognitive neuroscientist with the University of Sheffield, and co-author of Mind Hacks - Tips and Tricks for Using Your Brain

Workshops and seminars

TEACHING AND LEARNING: presentations and seminars from practitioners. The provisional programme of events on teaching and learning already includes contributions from the following, Sarah Harris, Buxton Community School; Peter Reddy, Aston University; Lesley McHenry, Bilborough College; Richard Gross, author; Cara Flanagan, author; Chris Brain, EdExcel; Karen Duffy, Manchester Metropolitan University; Merv Stapleton, City of Sunderland College; Matt Jarvis, Totton College.

E-LEARNING WORKSHOPS to explore how teachers can embed new technologies in their teaching. We will have hands on ICT sessions throughout the conference and we hope to have demonstrations from key educational suppliers such as Promethean.

EXAMINATION WORKSHOPS to help teachers prepare for new specifications. These events are a regular feature of the conference and we welcome back the Awarding Bodies and senior examiners.

RESEARCH UPDATES to give teachers some insight into where research psychology is heading at this time. Lincoln University psychology department will be presenting on topics as such, The Baby Lab, Clinical Psychology, Forensic Psychology, Identity

WORKING SESSIONS: We will have a number of working sessions this year which delegates are invited to attend. These will include, a writer's workshop for aspiring authors and a research workshop for teachers looking to carry out their own research projects.

The Conference Committee reserve the right to change the programme if necessary.

ATP Lincoln 2008: more details at www.atpconference.org.uk/